DEMOCRATS PICK HOUSTON AS SITE FOR CONVENTION

Millions Solid South So Honored First Time; Harmony Effort Evident as Jackson Diners Gather

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—After deciding to take their party convention into the Solid South this year, for the first time in history, Democratic leaders from over the nation came together tonight at a Jackson dinner designed to help to harmonize the differences that made for party tragedy at the Madison Square Garden convention in 1924.

Houston, Tex., one of the small cities ever to entertain a national party gathering, was chosen for the 1928 convention after a five-ballot contest with San Francisco and Detroit in the Democratic National Committee.

Only one of the central figures of the Madison Square Garden battle, William G. McAdoo, attended the dinner tonight, but the other, Gov. Smith of New York, sent a message, expressing his regret at being absent and urging the party to meet unanimously each specific problem of the day.

DIFFERENCES BURIED
Neither McAdoo, who has voluntarily retired from the political arena, nor Smith had any reference to the Madison Square Garden battle. Instead each sounded a rallying cry for the party to apply the principles set down by Jackson and Jefferson as the one way to the White House.

There were other signs of harmonizing efforts made from the addresses. William G. McAdoo, who has voluntarily retired from the political arena, and Gov. Smith of New York, sent a message, expressing his regret at being absent and urging the party to meet unanimously each specific problem of the day.

COMMITTEE REPORT
Selection of Houston as the convention site was described by the committee as a "service to the party."

ONE DEAD IN MINE FIGHT

Colorado Strike Row Flares

Three Wounded When Police Turn Back Parade of Men and Families

State Forces Prepare to Besiege I.W.W. Hall But Later Withdraw

WALDENBURG (Colo.) Jan. 12. (AP)—One striker, Clements Chavez, 25 years of age, is dead; one State policeman, Max Lordean, and two striking miners, Salustio Martinez, 19, and Pete Verlich, are wounded, as the result of a pitched battle between police and coal-miner strikers here today.

After several hours of maneuvering and the exchange of desultory shots following the first clash at the I.W.W. hall, State police late in the afternoon withdrew their forces, with which they were preparing to besiege several hundred strikers who had gathered in the hall. They made no explanation of this move. Strikers left the hall in large numbers, although 100 still remained.

AREA BOPED OFF
Following the first clash the strikers went to the I.W.W. hall and barricaded themselves on the second floor and started firing out the windows at any State police who appeared on the street. A two-block area around the I.W.W. headquarters was roped off by State police, and a hurry call sent for all available mine guards in the county. State police and they intended to storm the hall and would use machine guns if necessary.

The shooting came after the State police had turned back a parade of about 700 striking miners and their families were participating. The strikers were ordered to return to their hall. When they reached a street intersection on their return it was declared that they intended to storm the hall and would use machine guns if necessary.

Barrier to Conversion of Girl from Seattle Latest Obstacle to Marriage

BOMBAY (British India) Jan. 12. (AP)—A new obstacle to the marriage of the former Maharajah of Indore and Miss Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., cropped up today when the secretary of the Hindu Missionary Society here declared that Miss Miller could not be converted to Christianity merely to enable her to marry the former Maharajah.

The former ruler has been in touch with the Hindu Missionary Society in an effort to arrange for the conversion of the American girl. Reports continue to come to Bombay that public opinion in Indore is strongly opposed to the idea of his taking a third wife. His second wife is taking the news hard and is protesting with grief.

ANGELENO'S BODY AMONG DEAD OF S-4
Fifteen Disaster Victims Identified—Only Six More Yet Under Sea

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Navy Department today announced identification of the fifteen bodies recovered from the submarine S-4 yesterday. They include Lieut. Donald Waller, Los Angeles; Donald Fred K. Downing, electrician's mate, Vallejo.

With recovery and identification of the fifteen bodies there remained only six of the bodies in the torpedo room, the names of which are known.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Senate Naval Committee today approved a joint resolution calling for an investigation by a special commission into the sinking of the submarine S-4.

The vote, 9 to 8, was along party lines and overrode the objection of the Democratic members, who insisted on a Congressional inquiry into the disaster.

After the meeting Democrats announced they will carry the fight to the Senate floor.

Discovery of Oil Foretold in Will
SAN LUIS OBISPO, Jan. 12. (AP)—Because Fred Raushenblatt was certain that there was oil under his property in the Oak Park section, ten miles from here, he provided in his will, drawn in 1918, that the land could not be sold until twenty years after his death.

Raushenblatt died in 1924. Monday the Elberta Oil Company brought in a 1,000-barrel oil well on the property.

The only known heir is Pauline Stairs, 11 years of age, daughter of the administrator of the Raushenblatt estate. Two daughters of a half-brother are believed to be in Germany.

SHIP'S FATE CONCEALED BY SILENCE
Faint Distress Signals Heard by Litter

SEATTLE, Jan. 12. (AP)—Mystery tonight again veiled the whereabouts and fate of the freighter Griffon, in distress off the Washington coast with twenty-five men aboard.

A day of silence from the radio of the Griffon was broken at 6 p.m. today when the passenger liner Adriatic, twenty hours out of Victoria, B. C., for Australia, reported that she had heard barely distinguishable signals from the missing ship. Efforts of the Adriatic to get into communication with the Griffon were unavailing, the United States Coast Guard reported.

The signals reported to have been received by the Adriatic were the distress signals of the Griffon since the latter vessel sent out SOS calls at 11:30 p.m. last night. The distress signals, the freighter's wireless lapsed into silence despite the persistent efforts of a dozen Pacific Coast radio stations to communicate with the ship.

In her original distress call last night the Griffon gave no details of the trouble about her and failed to transmit her position, which was estimated by radio men as 500 miles south-southwest of Cape Flattery, Wash. The ship left here Monday for Honolulu.

In addition to the motorship Adair, two United States Coast Guard cutters and the freighter Griffo were searching tonight for the missing ship. The Griffo was still in distress when it was reported that the ship had been sighted by the Griffo.

Additional indications that the Griffo was still in distress were given by the Griffo.

The opinion had grown all day that an offshore storm might have fanned the 140-ton freighter.

At the end of three minutes the current was turned off and Dr. C. C. Sweet, prior physician, pronounced his stethoscope to the colorless brain. He stepped back and Dr. Kearney, his assistant, listened to the chest against her right calf was the other electrode.

Her thick legs were gripped by two electrodes. Her head was held by a regulation football helmet inside of which were two electrodes. One electrode was pressed against a bald spot where they had clipped her hair. Another electrode was pressed against her right calf was the other electrode.

MacIntosh smiled his way out of his hotel clerk position four months ago and became an electric refrigerator salesman. His personality enabled him to dash to success in short order in that line. And so it came to pass that, following the ceremony, Mrs. MacIntosh signed "M. MacIntosh" to the register of the Ritz Towers and there the newlyweds took up their abode.

Hoffman and his daughter Mary also make their winter home in the fashionable apartment house at the Hoffman mansion in Orange.

Details of this bitter fight between the lawyer for Ruth Snyder and the forces behind the prosecutor's office will be related presently. The drama unfolded a sinister plot to keep the room calls for unimpeded attention.

PHILIP CARP
Execution Carried Out
With Perfect Precision
Mercifully Swift to Both;
Mrs. Snyder Repeats Prayer
Spoken From the Cross

(N. Y. Jan. 12. (P).)—The execution of Ruth Snyder and Alvin Karpis was carried out tonight without a hitch. Just before 11 o'clock Warden Lawes, assisted by two doctors and twenty reporters, gathered in the prison courtyard and told them that the time had come.

When the two men reached the main door was thrown open. "All right, boys," a guard called to the reporters, "the execution is on." The two men were taken to the room where two more telegraph wires had been installed to carry the news of the execution.

The room was alive with light and noise. In the center of the room stood a tall, narrow electric chair. The two men were taken to the room and placed in the chair. The execution was carried out with perfect precision. Mrs. Snyder repeated the prayer she had spoken from the cross.

P SALM CONSOLES DOOMED MAN
Chaplain Reads Words as Former Salesman in Cell Awaits Execution

(N. Y. Jan. 12. (Exclusive).)—When Henry Judd Gray went to the electric chair tonight for the murder of Alvin Karpis, the words on which he leaned for consolation were of the Twenty-third Psalm.

Rev. Anthony Peterson, a Protestant chaplain, with Gray at the last moment, read the Psalm from just before the former convict salesman walked to the execution chamber.

Gray was alone in the cell. The last members of his family to see Gray were his mother, his sister and brother-in-law, who stayed as they were allowed, which was shortly after dark.

His wife, who had visited him only once during his months at Sing Sing, did not come to the prison today.

Mrs. Snyder's brother was the only member of her family to see her last day. Her aged mother has been a constant visitor but today she stayed at home.

The little daughters of both prisoners never had been brought to Sing Sing and this rule was not broken today.

In a talk with the prison doctor shortly before he died, Gray expressed the hope that his experience might serve as an example to others to "keep them off the rocks."

"During his last moments," the warden told reporters, "Gray was more composed than I was or am."

WOMAN GOES TO CHAIR FIRST

given by a friend in a near-by suburb. Mrs. Brown, Ruth's mother, was nursing a sick woman in another town and would be away that night. Ruth left the kitchen door unlocked, so Gray might enter while they were at the party and be hidden in the darkened house when Snyder got to sleep. It developed later that at the party Ruth had complained of a headache and been quite sparing in her tipping but had added to a tumbler of gin and orange juice to all it. The hosts and the other guests said that Ruth had been unusually tender and sympathetic in the matter of her simulated headache.

THEN SHE WAKENED
Gray's alibi bespeaks a half-running mind which might have deceived the detectives had not Ruth wakened and involved him in her confession. On March 19 he was registered in the Occident Hotel in Syracuse, N. Y. There lived in Syracuse a close friend of Judd's, named Haddon Gray, an insurance broker not related to the convict salesman.

Judd called him to his room and explained that he had a date with a woman in Albany, but did not want his name to be playing around in the room. So he asked Haddon to help him by coming to the room during Saturday night and making a couple of letters to his wife on the table so the postman would show him in Syracuse.

FALLS BACK DEAD
Snyder relaxed his clutch on Gray's necktie and fell back dead. Gray, who had been holding her up, looked at the dead woman's face and then at the dead man's face. They poured chloroform on the bits of cotton and propped them far up into the victim's nostrils.

Well, Snyder was dead enough at last. The pair of murderers went downstairs, got another bottle of whiskey and drank it. In their mad, desperate effort to make the crime appear as the act of robbers, they staggered back up the stairs, hunched into the death chamber, emptied the dresser drawers on the floor, turned over a chair or two and hid Ruth's jewelry under her mattress—about three feet away. On the train Gray had picked up an Italian newspaper; so they left that on the floor to make it seem Italian had done the deed.

Then Gray removed his beaming shirt, put on one of Snyder's and took the sack weight into the collar. He hid it in a tool chest and sprinkled ash on the tools. In the furnace he burned his shirt and a sheet Ruth had fetched him so wipe his bloody hands on.

Then he returned to the ever-familiar embrace of his paramour and lingered there until eastern dawn greeted the Long Island skies. Just before he departed he got a length of clothes line from the basement, bound Ruth's arms and ankles and placed a gag in her mouth. She lay on the hall carpet in front of the bathroom while he completed his task.

HADN'T THE HEART
"Daring," said Ruth just before he gagged her, "didn't you better ask me in the face to make it seem that I was unconscious?"

"No, monsie," responded the tender-souled convict drummer, "I have not the heart to hurt you."

Gray then walked down the street to a bus station, rode a bus into New York City and caught a train back to Syracuse.

Mrs. Snyder finally unconscious one hand, removed the gag and screamed for Lorraine. The child came running and was told to summon the Mulhauers, neighbors across the way. The Mulhauers came, released Ruth and called the police of Queens Village.

The police came, listened to Ruth's story, took a look around and notified headquarters in New York City. More experienced and skeptical detectives were sent out; and, after hearing it all over and inspecting the

EIGHT WOMEN PUT TO DEATH
Seven Pay Penalty in New York Before Ruth Snyder Wends Way to Sing Sing Electric Chair

(N. Y. Jan. 12. (Exclusive).)—Seven women have paid the death penalty in New York State before Mrs. Ruth Snyder. Five were married and the last two were put to death in the electric chair. All were married and all were mothers.

The first woman to be executed for murder in this state, according to the records, was an innocent victim of circumstances. She was hanged for a crime she did not commit. She was Mrs. Margaret Houghtaling, who was hanged for strangling her own child in 1817. Public horror and false testimony of neighbors brought about her conviction. A few years after she had gone to the gallows another woman confessed the crime on her deathbed.

POISONED HUSBANDS
Mrs. Alice Runkle and Mrs. Elizabeth Van Valkenburg were convicted of poisoning their husbands and hanged. Mrs. Van Valkenburg at Johnstown on July 16, 1869, and Mrs. Runkle, who lived at Utica, at Whitesboro, in 1849.

Long as they were allowed, which was shortly after dark.

She was Mrs. Anna Hoag, arrested at her home in South Amherst, N. Y., in 1862, after an autopsy revealed a large quantity of arsenic had been administered to her husband. Her case aroused great public interest because she was an expectant mother. Friends circulated petitions for clemency, but the governor refused to head the public clamor, but did postpone the execution. She was finally hanged on July 17.

There also was a widespread public appeal to save Mrs. Rosalind Druse, convicted of the murder of her husband at Merkiner on December 18, 1864. Her daughter, Mary, also was convicted of complicity in the crime and sentenced to life imprisonment, but was pardoned after serving eight years and married an official of the Onondaga penitentiary, where she had been a prisoner. Her mother, in a state of insanity, was committed to an asylum, February 25, 1877, executed the daughter. Special pleas were made to Governor Roosevelt, but they were refused. Mrs. Druse was hanged on March 2, 1877.

WHAT ROOSEVELT SAID
"In the commission of a crime a woman is deserving of the same blame as a man in a similar case. It would deal with the woman as the man—no whit differently."

The last woman to die in the electric chair was Mrs. Mary H. Parmelee, who had been convicted of killing a woman neighbor, Mrs. Sarah Brown, for her property. They lived at Brownville, near Watertown, N. Y. A forged deed to Mrs. Brown's little home stirred suspicion to the fact that Mrs. Parmelee had been a woman neighbor. Mrs. Parmelee and her husband were arrested. Mrs. Parmelee was hanged on March 20, 1906.

Questioned as to
That Constitutes First
Class Sea Force

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. (AP)—The Navy department today announced a plan for a twenty-year ship construction program at an estimated cost of approximately $3 billion. The plan was unveiled today by Secretary of the Navy Clegg before the House committee on naval affairs.

Mr. Clegg said he was not prepared to say how many ships would be built but that the annual program would be about $150 million. He added that the administration recently announced $725 million for the construction of other fighting craft, which includes the replacement of obsolete vessels as soon as possible under the terms of the Washington treaty.

EDISON LEAVES FORD BEHIND

WEST ORANGE (N. J.) Jan. 12. (AP)—Thomas A. Edison left today for his winter residence at Fort Myers, Fla. Henry Ford, who spent the night at the Edison home in Llewellyn Park, returned to New York for several days before joining Edison in the South.

Ford had announced he would accompany Edison today and when the latter was asked before he boarded his private railroad car why the automobile manufacturer was not along he shrugged and said:

and other auxiliary craft before 1935 and then begin the replacement of capital ships.

Questioned by Representative Vinson of Georgia, senior Democrat on the committee, Mr. Wilbur said that the war craft, which the Navy already has asked Congress to authorize would be necessary to provide a first-class sea force, adding that he had testified yesterday that the need for additional cruisers was imperative.

Chairman Butler asked the Secretary upon his next appearance before the committee to describe what a first-class Navy is, and added, "You have made a statement here that will shock the country when you say that the United States has not a first-class Navy."

DOESN'T WANT PAPER FLEET
Representative Britten of Illinois, senior Republican committee member, questioned the Secretary closely as to why the Navy Department, in submitting the $725,000,000 program, had not requested Congress to provide for its completion within a specified time. He declared that for one he did not wish only a "paper fleet."

Wilbur replied that the Navy also was anxious for the actual ships and that no completion date had been included as requests for the money had to be submitted through the budget and that finishing the program would depend on Congress providing the money.

"That is no joke," he added. "If any joker gets in, it will be in Congress."

BAN PUT ON MARRIAGES OF MARINES

Nicaraguan Bishop Acts on Request of American
Commander of Corps

MANAGUA, Jan. 12. (AP)—A ban has been placed on the marriage of United States marines and native girls of Nicaragua with the approval of the Catholic Church. Bishop Casilio Jose of the diocese of Granada has issued the following circular under date of December 31:

"The American commander has requested this ecclesiastical authority to order priests not to celebrate marriages between Nicaraguan girls and members of the American marine department, since these latter do not have a fixed residence, and the girls run the risk of being abandoned by their husbands, when, on account of a sudden order they have to leave the place."

"Moreover, the American marines do not have the right to dispose of sufficient money for the maintenance of a decent home."

"The reasons on which the request of the American commander are based are considered to be very just, consequently, priests shall not perform the above-indicated marriages. In order that no one shall be deceived through ignorance, you shall advise the members of the church by publishing our decision and explaining it."

TRUST PROGRAMS DIFFER

Pacific Investing Reports Progress; United States and Foreign Securities Shows 98 Per Cent in Stocks

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Very little similarity is found in the policies of the three investment trusts that have reported so far for the twelve months of 1927. One report shows that one company was virtually out of the bond market at the close of the year, another was in bonds and preferred stocks in about equal amounts, and the third was more heavily interested in preferred stocks than in bonds.

Rigid Policy of Depreciation Use by Richfield

Inauguration of a depreciation and depletion policy was arranged yesterday by the Richfield Oil Company of California. Depreciation of buildings, equipment, machinery, transportation facilities, plants, service stations, signs, airplanes, etc., now runs from 3 per cent to 100 per cent per annum, all being charged to operations on the oil lands. The depreciation charges have been set at 33 1/3 per cent per annum on the oil lands, 30 per cent on the amount to provide for actual depletion of oil reserves and 25 per cent on the amount to provide for actual depletion of oil reserves.

Rosy Forecast by California Packing Chief

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12. (Exclusive)—California Packing Corporation is rounding out its fiscal year, which ends February 28, in better shape than the most optimistic portents anticipated at the beginning of the season.

BONDS LIQUIDATED

Because of the low percentage of bonds, particularly interest-bearing bonds, the California Trust and Savings Bank, a Dillon, Read & Co. creation, has liquidated only 10 per cent of the total investment, which indicates that this company was taking profits on its bonds last year and diverting the proceeds into industrial and public-utility shares.

California Trust Company Meets

Leo B. Chandler, who was re-elected president yesterday of the California Trust Company at a meeting of the directors, followed by a meeting of the stockholders, stated in his annual address that the company's business for 1927 was promising and that the twelve months just passed have shown the greatest annual growth in the history of the company.

ENLARGING FIELD

Investors' Council of America, Inc., with head offices in New York and offices already established in Philadelphia, Boston, and Chicago, announced that it contemplates a program of expansion which will result in the early opening of the Pacific Coast of two new units, at Los Angeles and San Francisco. Other centers where additional branches will be opened, according to the organization's announcement, include St. Louis, Baltimore, Atlanta and Dallas.

Total Turnover at Session of Fair Volume

NEW YORK, Jan. 12. (AP)—Stock prices drifted rather aimlessly in the early part of today's session and then turned upward in response to favorable trade news. This included the prediction of President Sloan of the General Motors Corporation that the first quarter of 1928 would break all records and a further pickup in steel mill activity now reported to be around 75 per cent of capacity.

MOTORS ACTIVE

General Motors, which had been rather sluggish for the past two weeks on selling inspired by belief that recent automobile price cuts would impair the earnings, turned sharply upward on Sloan's statement, closing nearly 3 points higher at 129 7/8. Hudson, Buick, Packard and Yellow Truck preferred also advanced but the other motor changes were largely fractional.

PROTECTION OF AREA

Then, too, the other elements of diversification should be considered... maturity, marketability, yield and other factors of the offering. Faced with the advisability of complete diversification in the selection of investments from among 300,000 seasoned securities on the world market today, the choice is simplified by making selection from the list of investment offerings carefully prepared by the Investment Banker to give adequate diversification in every phase to meet any individual requirement.

LONDON, Jan. 12. (By wireless).—The markets were steady to firm today, with some activity in Kaffir and a slight recovery in oils.

Board of Trade figures for December were, however, disappointing. The fall in exports was attributable partly to bad weather.

British Colonies issued a circular to shareholders and advertised that it is impossible to manufacture cellulose acetate yarns, fabrics or other textile articles of commercial value without infringing at some stage in the process on the company's patent rights, but that, on the other hand, the British Colonies Company can by a simple process transform cellulose into a product similar to viscose if the circumstances require it. Obviously this is a contentious point that conceivably only long litigation could settle.

For the last month the decline in imports was mainly in coal and the value of arrivals of raw cotton from the United States was $2,500,000, against over $2,500,000 last year. The quantity of cotton was down still more.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Banking Shares in Further Advance; Edison and Standard Oil Show Gains

Movement of prices on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday developed fractional gains in the utilities and general improvement in the banking issues, which have been soft in the last two days. Irregularity was evidenced in the oils, and the mines held to steady ground with one or two exceptions. Broadway Department Store in the miscellaneous group continued its rise of previous sessions and closed up 1/2 to 100 3/4.

Bank of Italy advanced 7-8 to a close of 56 on a turnover of 663 shares, and Rio Grande gained a point on opening at 21 where it held to a close. Richfield on a light turnover, lost 1-8 to 26 1/2, and California Petroleum edged a like amount to a close of 26. Union Oil dropped 1-8 which was gained by American Associated, closing at 44 1-4 and 4-8 respectively.

Considerable activity followed the mining group which held steady with the exception of Sunnyside, which closed at 14 cents, having lost the point gained yesterday. Western Apex closed down a cent to 5 cents. Tom Reed was active but held firm at 38 on sales of 1000 shares. In the oil group, Caterpillar Tractor led trading with a turnover of 939 shares and after gaining 1-4 closed at 10 1/2. Total stock sales for the day amounted to 100,562, while bond transactions aggregated $65,000.

TWO WOUNDED IN GUN BATTLE

Suspect Shot Down After Shooting Officer
Prisoner Makes Vain Effort to Effect Escape
Paroled ex-Convict May Die; Victim Will Live

Manuel Gallego, 36 years of age, was lying in the General Hospital last night near death from a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Leland A. Thorne, chauffeur for the Sheriff's office, was suffering from a bullet wound in the hip as a result of a desperate attempt made by Gallego to escape from the custody of duty sheriffs in the office of the Sheriff yesterday morning.

The shooting occurred in the east room of the robbery detail office when Gallego leaped upon Thorne, who was seated with his back turned, seized Thorne's revolver and shot him through the hip. Deputy Sheriff W. C. Hutcherson, assistant to Capt. C. E. Peoples, leaped into the affray at this point and pursued Gallego to the door through which he was trying to escape.

ONE SHOT DROPS HIM
As Gallego reached the door Frank W. Segura, a special deputy sheriff, leaped upon him and grappled with him. Just then Capt. Peoples dashed into the room from his office and Gallego leveled his revolver at the officer and pulled the trigger. Segura, however, anticipating Gallego's intention, struck the gun as he pulled the trigger and the bullet glanced from the metal barbed of the room and imbedded itself under the heavy linoleum covering the floor. Then Deputy Sheriff Hutcherson finding an opening, fired one shot, striking Gallego in the abdomen and he fell to the floor dropping his weapon.

After the shooting Deputy Sheriff Thorne was treated by Dr. M. Levin of the County Health Department and Gallego was given first aid in the jail hospital. Later both men were taken to the General Hospital where Gallego's wound was pronounced dangerous.

Gallego had been arrested early yesterday morning by Police Officers Price and Rogers at Temple and Main streets following a short gun battle. He is accused of robbing Juarez Alberto a short time before his arrest in a rooming house at 522 Temple street. At the time of his arrest the officers found in Gallego's possession two packages, one containing a police whistle, a pass key, scarf and $23.10 in cash. The other package contained $11.15 in cash, a knife, chain and watch. Gallego had been brought to the Sheriff's office for identification by Deputy Sheriffs Brown and Cloud.

PAROLED EX-CONVICT
According to police, Gallego served three years of a four-year term in San Quentin for burglary, being paroled July 14, 1934. The record shows that he served a ninety-day sentence in 1932 for battery in Oakland, ninety days in the County Jail for vagrancy in Los Angeles beginning April, 1932, and paid a $25 fine and served ten days for disturbing the peace here in September, 1932.

After the shooting Capt. Peoples and Sheriff Treasurer complimented Deputy Sheriff Hutcherson for his part in the affair effecting the capture.

WRESTLER PROMISED DISMISSAL

Terrible Turk Freed in Duro Threat Charge But Bonded to Keep Peace

Though reserving his final decision until February 14, next, Municipal Judge Westover announced yesterday that he will dismiss the felony complaint charging Hassan Mohammed, local wrestler, with threats to kill Prosecutor Lew Duro, if he refrains from further demonstrations.

The decision came at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing of Mohammed, also known as "The Terrible Turk," accused of making several threats against Duro's life. Should the wrestler cause further trouble, he will be held for trial to the Superior Court. Judge Westover ordered the defendant to post a $500 peace bond.

Mohammed testified the trouble arose out of his refusal to "lay down" in a wrestling bout with Mick Gardini. He defeated his opponent in several instances and Duro, the promoter, refused to give him any more matches, the witness said. Gardini was to be matched with Joe Fischer, wrestling champion, if he had won the Turk said.

Jack Bairo, a nervy, testified in behalf of Mohammed. He saw Lew Duro drive up in front of Third and Figueroa streets on the 4th instant, climb out of his automobile and vigorously censure the Turk, according to testimony.

Duro testified Wednesday, at the opening of the hearing, that he was threatened because he would not look the Turk for more wrestling bouts at the Olympic Auditorium.

The two contestants will appear before a jury in Municipal Judge Blake's court on February 8 on charges of disturbing the peace as a result of their asserted fight on the 4th inst.

Opponent members of the protesting group declared that boys under 18 years of age are buying cigarettes at the machines. They also testified that dealers admit that it is not possible to watch the machines to ascertain the ages of those who buy.

Father Seeks Absentee Son

An anxious father, Filippo Sandilippo, awaits word from his son, A. Sandilippo, 39 years of age, who disappeared from his home, 408 North Hill street, August 1, 1934.

According to the boy's father, his son came to Los Angeles about a year and a half ago, from Lombardy, Italy. He obtained employment as a metal worker here, but he does not know for whom he works. He says that his son or anyone knowing his whereabouts should communicate with him.

The young man is described as being about five feet eight inches in height, weighing about 180 pounds and having black hair and dark eyes.

Supper Dishes to be Made in Cooking Class

Mrs. Mabelle Wyman, whose cooking class assembles in the food demonstration room of the Metropolitan Exhibit, 180 South Broadway, Southwest Building, at 1:30 p.m. today, will devote her attention to making codfish creamed with potato patties, baked Indian pudding with apples, Welsh rabbit, and surprise croquettes.

Mrs. Wyman will make the dishes before the class. Recipes for all of them may be obtained without charge from the hostesses. Visitors are asked to take elevators to the third floor direct.

The exhibit of the Hal Roach studio is now in place and many of the comedy devices used in pictures by our Gang are displayed that visitors may see just how those rolicking youngsters are provided with devices for their funmaking.

GOLDEN STATE BAND AT PARK ON SUNDAY

Harold William Roberts and his Golden State Band will play the seventh of their concerts on the winter season schedule at Lincoln Park at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, and bring a varied program of instrumental selections. These Sunday afternoon open-air entertainments are made possible by the city park board and the Lincoln Heights Commercial Association. The summer season of concert, which will open in April, will be the occasion for the dedication of a new stucco bandstand, which is to be constructed soon at Lincoln Park. The new shell will be equipped with the latest loud-speaker device and concert appointment. The Sunday program this week will feature a woodwind duo, Howard McMurtry and Abner Simpkins, accompanied by the ensemble.

LITTLE HOPE HELD FOR MAN WHO SHOT SELF

The condition of Manuel Camorena, who shot himself through the head in Wilmington Monday afternoon, still is critical. It was declared at the General Hospital last night. The bullet penetrated Camorena's brain and doctors have little hope of his recovery.

court records disclose, moved and obtained Allen's dismissal on the grounds that the defendant was in prison. Dep. Dist. Atty. McKay has conducted the inquiry before the jurors.

WHAT LAW SAYS
Section 935 of the Penal Code in part makes the following exceptions to the District Attorney or members of his staff appearing before the jury: "Except when a charge against or involving the District Attorney or assistant District Attorney or deputy District Attorney, or anyone employed by or connected with the office of the District Attorney, is being investigated by the grand jury, such District Attorney, or assistant District Attorney, or deputy District Attorney, or anyone employed by or connected with the office of the District Attorney, or anyone shall not be allowed to be present before such grand jury when such charge is being investigated in an official capacity, but only as a witness, and shall only be present while a witness and after his appearance as such witness, must leave the place where the said grand jury is holding its sessions."

McKay interprets the code to mean that any member of the District Attorney's office may be present except that member whose name is involved in the investigation.

The strict and only interpretation of that section of the Penal Code, Payne asserts, is that an assistant prosecutor from the State Attorney-General's office must preside in such investigations as the one in progress against Keyes' office.

Catholic Film Guild to Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Motion Picture Guild of America will be held at the Hollywood Club next Monday evening, and will be known as the "Catholic Film Guild." The meeting will be held at 10:30 p.m. and will feature a presentation of the film "The Sign of the Cross." The guild is a non-profit organization of Catholic film producers and exhibitors, and its purpose is to promote the production and exhibition of Catholic films.

Every Member of Wampas Will Help With Ball

In naming every individual of his organization as an active member of one of its numerous committees, Ray Coffin, president of the Wampas, has insured the co-operation of the entire association in presenting its forthcoming 1935 frolic and ball, which will be held at the Ambassador Auditorium Saturday evening, February 23.

The Wampas membership now numbers 135, and includes the publicity men representing every studio and theater in the community, as well as established free-lance screen advertisers.

Heading all other committees is the executive group of which Mark Levin is chairman and the members are John LeRoy Johnston, Harold Hurley, Ray Davidson, Sam W. N. Cohn, Joe Sherman and Joseph Steele.

Working in co-operation with the executive staff are three subcommittees to which will be delegated a wide variety of special work in connection with the ball and the annual presentation of the Wampas baby stars.

Play this Game and win a share of $5000 in Prizes

Try your wits at picking titles in the Los Angeles Times new Picturegame!

Every day a new picture is printed in The Times—drawn to represent the title of some book. The fun is just beginning, and will continue until 77 pictures have appeared. You can win as high as $1000 simply by picking best titles for these easy pictures.

To make it even more attractive, The Times has prepared an Official Catalogue containing the titles to all pictures. See below how to obtain this valuable aid to prize-winning. Once you have a copy, just scan the list, pick out the title you think is best for each picture, write them down on the title coupon, and save them all until your set of 77 pictures is completed. Full instructions will be given out later how to submit your answer list.

You can start with Picture No. 6 today. All previous pictures will be reprinted in next Sunday's Times for the benefit of those who missed the first few days of the Picturegame.

How to Get The Official Catalogue

To insure absolute fairness to all players, The Times has prepared an Official Picturegame Catalogue containing several hundred titles of books. Only titles listed in this catalogue are eligible, and you have only to run through the list each day and pick out the title that fits best. THE DEATH PENALTY

Opponents of capital punishment often assert that they base their opinion on a genuine feeling for the sacredness of human life. But is this feeling in reality anything more than a sentimental and sentimental squeamishness? A professor in an eastern university recently declared that religion is at fault in preaching the forgiveness, without explanation, of sin. He meant no irreverence, nor did he intend to stir up a theological controversy; but he pointed out that in nature there is no such forgiveness and that every act in contravention of nature's law is followed by its logical consequence, from which there is no escape. He contended that forgiveness in some future life, and forgiveness in this one are totally different things; the former is God's providence, and man is in error in trying to invade it.

The death penalty is in fact often exacted by nature for very trivial offenses, from a moral point of view, at times for minor mistakes that have no element of sin. The error of failing to distinguish between a toothache and a mushroom, for instance, could hardly be called an infraction of a moral code. Carelessness at a railroad grade crossing is not contrary to its logic, but a serious offense; it is punishable, if at all, by a small fine or worse reckless driving is involved, by a few days in jail as the maximum. Yet death may be the result. Nor does nature have any objection to cruel and unusual punishments; it means as much to wring and dismember, tortures quite as exquisitely as did the diabolical inventions of the Middle Ages, on what appears frequently to be quite inadequate ground.

Nature does not forgive nor interfere to save men from the consequences of their acts. The result is that nature's laws are better respected than the laws made by man, and when nature's penalty is inflicted it is received with little whining. Here is an example of relentless, inexorable, which the administrators of the criminal law might well take as their ideal. It is not merciful to deal out mercy with too lavish a hand.

CHARACTER, NOT LAW

The corporate securities act, or "blue-sky law," of California is about as strict an enactment of its kind as any State has. But that it does not and apparently cannot protect investors wholly has just been illustrated again by the Julian Petroleum case. The selling of Judge Dorn's stock, in his view, the spurious stock issued in the only stock that may prove to have any value, shows to what extent stockholders are at the mercy of any rascals or scoundrels who may become officers and directors.

Judge Dorn holds that in issuing the fraudulent shares, the Julian officers were acting as agents for the stockholders, and that these shares, while not stock and not representing ownership nor carrying voting power, are prior claims upon the corporation's assets.

It is true, the Corporation Commissioner stopped this stock issue as soon as he found out about it, but the courts would have done the same in the absence of a corporate securities act.

There is little doubt that the "blue-sky law" does prevent many fraudulent promotions. It is at least an open question, however, if as much money is not lost in proportion here as in the States that have no such laws, since investors come to rely upon the certificate of the Corporation Commissioner and consider that his permit is in a sense a guarantee. It is evident from the Julian and other cases that it cannot be so considered.

The character and probity of the promoters, officers and directors of any company, as well as their ability, are the only real safeguards for the investing public. There is no substitute for honesty.

ACQUAINTANCE COUNTS

Shortly before he went to Mexico to assume his diplomatic duties, Ambassador Morrow was asked what he expected to do down there. His reply was simply, "I am going to get acquainted."

Taking this dictum for his text, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, said in a recent New York address that developments of trade and international understanding arise through confidence, and confidence comes through acquaintance, and acquaintance comes through attention to the little matters of simple friendship. Applying this idea to Mexico, he said that a pleasant word begins an acquaintance better than the ponderous pronouncement of an omnibus policy or plan, however friendly or benevolently inclined the plan itself may be.

This seems axiomatic, yet in actual practice how much consideration is given by our diplomats to thus paving the way to lasting friendship? Many of our diplomats going to Latin America do not even take the trouble to learn Spanish, but talk through interpreters. How can they reach the hearts of the people they go among if they neglect such a prime requisite? It is a common saying among Americans with reference to a sympathetic friend, "He speaks my language," meaning that there is a perfect understanding between two individuals.

The first American entertained by Mr. Morrow at the embassy was not an academic exponent of troublesome international questions. It was Will Rogers, the humorist, and the next was Lindbergh, the famous flyer. The social contacts of these two men, introduced by Mr. Morrow, have made for more friendship with Mexico than would those of twenty bulge-browed visitors with their pockets full of portentous documents provoking formal overtures.

Mr. Morrow is right. To win the friendship of Latin America we must get acquainted with its people by means other than those of stiff formality and inattention upon any program or policy. There are those solemn folk who seem to think that to invite Rogers and Lindbergh down to Mexico is mere by-play and altogether nonsensical. However, it proved to be a capital way of getting acquainted, and thus making friends with Mexico. For there can be no true friendship without full acquaintance and understanding.

BRIDAL FURY

Part of the purification process which Miss Nancy Ann Miller of Stearns met undergo before she can marry the ex-Maharajah of Indore is to be bathed in the Ganges. As that sacred river at most seasons is said to rival our Big Muddy in impurity it is just as well to this rite to be added that of the making of a red mark on her forehead and the throwing of saffron-colored rice on her head, which also must be done before the lady is fit to marry a high-born Hindu.

THE OTHER SIDE OF LA

BY Lee Shippey

"I MUST be remembered," says Herbert Corey, writing in praise of Ellis Island the other day, "that some of the immigrants would make the Taj Mahal look like a filling station. We have great admiration for Herb, enhanced by several months of association overseas, and know him to be an accurate and keenly observant correspondent. So all we can say is that if the filling stations in New York are littered, it is a little thing after all, compared to our happiness together. Won't you please—please—swear off smoking?"

He looked at him in pained and chilling surprise. But at last he smiled at him as at an unreasonable yet indignant-compelling child.

"I promise," she said, firmly, her face beaming with heroic sacrifice.

Last night that same woman, homeward bound from a hard afternoon at the bridge club, stopped at the barber shop three corners from home.

"Give me a good brush, Jim," she said to the porter. "Wouldn't want the old man to see these ashes on my head."

He's one of those ewes, old-fashioned huddles, and simply can't understand what her smokes mean to a girl.

THOMAS HARDY

Early in his long and fruitful career Thomas Hardy, who had studied both architecture and literature, hesitated for a time over which he would choose for his life work. That he chose literature was most fortunate for the world of letters and himself, for he came to fill a high place as a novelist, some critics say the highest.

Now that he has passed from earth in his eighty-eighth year, it is fitting that he will be more widely read and awaken more general interest than it did during his lifetime. It was so with Dickens, with Eliot, with Stevenson, and it will be so with this great British novelist who died in his native Dorsetshire.

Thomas Hardy, who came from sound old English stock, was not a college man. He may be said to have been practically self-educated, so far as literature was concerned. Deserving architecture, in which he had shown marked proficiency, he turned to story-telling for which he early proved himself to have far more than common talent and in which he made good in a large way.

When his first successful novel, "Under the Greenwood Tree," appeared it was seen that he had made a close, sympathetic study of the rural folk among whom he lived and that he had a rare feeling for nature. Whether he depicted rusted old character or the youthful roseth there was always in his delineation a happy and delicate perfection of art. That his work was almost immediately recognized as that of a great artist was seen when the anonymous "Desperate Remedies" was hailed by the critics as the work of George Eliot.

In his many novels Hardy ran the whole gamut of human emotion and passion. Against the light, sunny "Greenwood Tree" may be contrasted the somber and powerful "Return of the Native." "Tess," his most famous novel, has been criticized for its bold portrayal of passion, but eminent critics have called it an unsurpassed piece of character delineation.

Hardy did not write "purpose" novels, and that is one reason why his work is so highly esteemed by those who know that art does not concern itself with propaganda, but rather with the basic facts of life as they are revealed in man and nature.

MENTAL ELECTRICITY

Time and time again certain scientists have maintained that thinking is of electrical origin. With the perfection of super-sensitive radio apparatus many have turned their attention more closely to the subject of the electrical mind and have made interesting experiments in their laboratories.

Among these modern investigators is Prof. Ferdinand Caszamal of the University of Milan. He placed a human being in an insulated box and attached delicate radio sending apparatus to the subject's head. With receiving apparatus in the room outside the professor says he listened for disturbances and heard them. There seemed to be a wide variation of sound according to the thoughts in the mind of the subject. Later he used photographic apparatus and made pictures of the thought waves.

Abbe Moreux of Bourges says that human beings are without doubt receiving radiations of all sorts which can affect

IF HEARST HAD BEEN CANDIDATE WITH THE SENATE COMMITTEE

Chairman: What is your name?

Hearst: William Randolph Hearst.

Q: What is your business?

A: I publish newspapers for people who think.

Q: Think what?

A: Oh—oh—I'm sure I don't know what they can be thinking of me, anyway.

Q: Well, what about these documents, Mr. Hearst?

A: Oh, yes—these documents. To be sure. Why, yes, I believe my papers did publish them. Ha! ha!

Q: Where did you get them?

A: Well, you see, the manager for one of my properties knew a fellow who knew of another fellow who was trying to sell these papers. I've been trying to sell papers myself for a long time—kind of like this, too, in some ways—and I knew how it was. So I sent for him and the papers looked pretty good so I bought them from him.

Q: How much did you pay him?

A: Well he'd been having a pretty hard time to sell them—

Q: Did you consider them reliable?

A: Certainly; as reliable as anything I print.

Q: Did you investigate them as to their authenticity and so on?

A: Of course not. I don't run my newspapers that way. If I had some feeling about it, like some papers do, and found out before-hand that they were a lot of forgeries I might not have been able to print them. Then where would I have been?

Q: Just why did you want to print them under such circumstances?

A: Well, like I said, they were pretty good stuff and they suited me fine. I'd been pretty sore at Mexico for a long time for the way they'd treated me down there. Then it's a part of my policy—my Pacific Coast policy, I mean—to slam Japan every time I get a chance. Yellow peril and all that sort of thing, you know. It goes big out there. Then there are a lot of chaps who are against Mexico and I figured it would make a hit with them and maybe swing a lot of votes the way I want this year. Then I didn't know but what, if I worked a little, I could stir up a lot of trouble for these other countries—have an army sent down into Mexico, get Nicaragua to seize the Canal Zone, maybe fix up a regular war. I'd never had a chance to advertise that the Hearst papers had done it and it would have been a big card. But mostly I wanted to print it because they were hot stuff plots against the United States and all—big banner lines, big type of sales—you know. War talk gets people worried and they buy papers to find out about it. Then, anyway, they like to read real scarehead stuff.

Q: Whether it's true or not?

A: Sure; before they get a chance to start asking a lot of questions something else comes along and we play it up big the same way and people forget all about the first one.

Q: But Mr. Hearst, how about your charges that these four United States Senators were in the secret pay of Mexico in what you said were plots against the United States? That Mexico had appropriated over a million dollars in bribes money to pay them and so on?

A: Well, I had to be a little careful about that. You see, some of the people named in the documents I'd already printed were already starting to file libel suits against my papers and I couldn't take any chances. Libel suits eat up the profits mighty fast. So I just kind of dropped in the names of these Senators on the documents so they couldn't prove in court who was meant.

Q: But didn't that put every member of the Senate under suspicion?

A: Oh, no, they could all tell whom I was driving at. Anyway, they couldn't prove anything.

Q: Did you ask any of them for their side of it?

A: No, I couldn't—they might have tipped it off to somebody else or stopped me from printing it or something.

Q: Did you make any investigation at all of the charges?

A: No, I told you why I couldn't do any investigating beforehand.

Q: Did you believe it yourself when you printed it?

A: Well, no, if you put it that way, I didn't. But it made a fine story, now didn't it?

Q: But how about these handwriting experts of yours who have just testified that all these documents are forgeries and that not a single one of them ever came from any Mexican government source?

A: Yes, that's true; that's too bad. But you fellows are to blame for that. I could see, the way things have been going here, that I couldn't make the documents

JURY REJECTS INSANITY PLEA
Former Film Publicity Agent Found Guilty of Issuing Worthless Checks
The first plea of "not guilty because of insanity" to be tested by a jury in Superior Court here under the new State law failed yesterday in Judge Fries's court, where Coleman Galloway, former motion-picture publicity agent, was convicted on a charge of issuing checks without sufficient funds.
Galloway will come before the court Monday for sentence. He faces a term of from one to five years in the State Penitentiary.
Galloway originally pleaded guilty to the charge, but later withdrew this plea and entered a plea of insanity. It took the jury only a brief period of time to decide he is sane.
The trial was held at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce April 11. The examination is open to any member who is studying child culture. Information can be secured by telephoning Westmore 3431.
The following committee is in charge: Dr. David W. Wilson, president; George L. Eastman, vice-president; Mrs. Frank Wiggins, secretary; Mrs. A. E. Varian, Mrs. E. W. Horton, Mrs. B. E. Rine, Mrs. G. F. Collins, Mrs. J. A. Cowan, Mrs. F. X. Brockmeyer, Mrs. E. P. Hanson, Mrs. James Rine, Mrs. Katherine Kelly, Mrs. Adelaide Hovey, Mrs. Charles Hubbard, Dr. Laura Thomson, Mrs. Howard S. MAJOR TRAFFIC PLAN EXTENDED
Commission Gets Proposal for Sewelle Area
Other Outlying Districts to be Taken Up
Future Subdivisions Will be Watched Over
The initial step to establish a major traffic plan in the area lying west and southwest of Los Angeles, which will conform with the city's recently adopted major traffic system, was taken yesterday at a meeting held in the office of the City Planning Commission.
The meeting was attended by representatives of Sewelle, Beverly Hills, Westwood and the university branch of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Donald M. Baker, a member of the Board of City Planning Commission, presided. The traffic plan, which covered the Sewelle district, was submitted by Gordon Whitcomb, director of the City Planning Commission, and is expected to be approved at a future date, with but few minor changes.
The plan covers itself only with the principal traffic arteries and those streets which can readily be eliminated traffic congestion and facilitate motor travel through the district. In most cases the boulevards and streets have already been established. The new plan calls primarily for their widening. In a few instances recommendations are made for the extension of minor streets to connect the more important boulevards.
It was stated yesterday by Commissioner Baker that as soon as the plan for the Sewelle district has been completed and approved the commission will immediately start work on an adjoining district. In

HOODOO SAYING HOWDY TODAY
If You Fear Friday, the Thirteenth, Better Borrow Horse-shoe from Milkman, Paint Black Cat Blue and Saw Up Your Ladder
Although you may not be aware of it until the man in the flat upstairs drops a flower pot on your head, or you stumble on the mat at the top of the steps, today is and will be up to a late hour in the evening, Friday, the Thirteenth.
It is the day on which, according to the Superstitious Sadies, the dark stars cast their shadows over the earth and all the bad luck which has been accumulating quickly for months and months is unleashed upon unsuspecting humanity.
Next to the first of the month the Thirteenth is the worst possible day. And when that day falls on Friday the course of six months, he said, the major traffic plan for the whole county should be co-ordinated with the major traffic system of Los Angeles.

NEW TANGLE ENTERS WAR ON DR. DYER
Clerk of Church Declares Recent Members Cannot Vote on Ousting Pastor
Another point of difference between Dr. Frank Dyer, pastor of the Wilshire Boulevard Congregational Church, and opposing members of the congregation arose yesterday with the statement of H. S. Laughlin, church clerk, that a number of persons, declared elected to membership by Dr. Dyer on Wednesday night, are not eligible to vote.
On the evening of the 34th inst., a meeting was held at which opponents of Dr. Dyer hoped to call a vote on his removal from the pastorate. Mr. Laughlin said at last Wednesday's meeting that Dr. Dyer had the names of more than 100 persons, stated to have joined the church, called an affirmative vote on the matter and declared them elected.

The gift was tendered by Eleanor Lloyd Smith, Ralph W. Smith, Robert Lloyd Dobbin and Hugh P. Dobbin and will be a memorial to Sarah Elizabeth Lloyd, mother of Eleanor Smith and Roberta Dobbin.

Jury Acquits Counterfeiting Case Suspect
John L. Altvirt, who was arrested September 28, 1927, after a peculiar series of circumstances on a charge of conspiracy to counterfeit United States $20 bills, was acquitted yesterday by a jury in the court of United States District Judge McCormick.
Altvirt was arrested at the home of Arthur E. Miller, 200 One Hundred and Second street, shortly after Miller had committed suicide by taking poison. Altvirt said he had gone to see Miller and had seen him purchase of real estate and that Miller had given him two spurious $20 bills. Miller, before his death, is said to have implicated Altvirt in the conduct of a counterfeiting plant, but Altvirt denied any knowledge of the plot. He was indicted by Attorney Russell Graham and William T. Kendrick, Jr., and prosecuted by Asst. U. S. Atty. Armstrong.

Actress Settles Debt to Doctor
Sue filed against Belle Bennett, actress, by Dr. Wilbur W. Mackenzie for $1042, for professional services in behalf of her son, Billie, yesterday was settled out of court.
In answering the physician's suit Mrs. Bennett asserted that the services had been of no benefit to her son. She had died several months ago, and it was only after his death that the actress admitted the payment. She contended that he was her brother, declaring this action necessary to retain her screen position.

BOY SCOUTS PARADE WITH ENTERTAINER
Met by sixty fellow-Boy Scouts, Eddie Peabody arrived home yesterday after a prolonged theatrical engagement in Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. They paraded the principal downtown streets proceeding to the City Hall, where Peabody was officially welcomed home by Mayor Frey. Peabody is here for an engagement at the State Theatre beginning today. "I'm glad to get back where it's warm!" enthusiastically exclaimed Peabody on his arrival. "Cold waves all over the country, but here it's easy to keep the old hands hot!"

MILES WITNESS NOW LESS SURE
Testimony in Murder Case Repudiated by Walton
New Trial to be Asked for Trio Convicted of Killing
"Confession" by Lasher May Have Been Imagined
New developments came yesterday in the case of Mike Garvey, Phil Nolan and Harry Lasher, convicted of the murder of A. R. Miles, West Jefferson street druggist, when H. S. Walton, one of the State's principal witnesses at the trial, gave an affidavit which he repudiated the testimony that helped convict the trio.
The affidavit was filed in Judge Walton's court by the defense attorney, S. S. Hahn, who said he will use it as the basis for a motion for a new trial to be made Monday, when Garvey, Nolan and Lasher are scheduled to appear for sentence.
At the trial of the case, Walton testified Lasher "confessed" to him the night of November 8, 1927, a week after the killing of Miles in the latter's drug store. Walton quoted Lasher as saying "I pulled that West Jefferson job—hit Miles over the head and when he came to and called me 'Heinie' I finished him with my feet."

SAVES HE WAS INTOXICATED
In his affidavit, Walton asserts he was intoxicated on the night of the so-called "confession" and that he may have imagined the words he placed on Lasher's tongue. According to Walton, he was questioned about the asserted statement of Lasher by police officers, including Officer Stoll, and that he told the officers he had only a faint recollection of the incident. Walton declares he has not been able to recall the words he said to the officers but he did not care to testify because he was so intoxicated on the night in question that he "might have imagined" Lasher's statement.

ADVISED TO GUARD TONGUE
Walton asserts he had not confided this fact to any court authority previously because he was "advised by Officer Stoll" not to do so. Stoll also told him that if he had related any details about being intoxicated the night of Lasher's asserted confession, "to make it as light as possible," the affidavit states.
Walton contends that he gave the affidavit freely and without regard because his conscience bothered him.
Dep. Dist. Atty. Mendon and Craig, who prosecuted the case, will seek affidavits from Stoll and other police officers in an effort to offset Walton's statement when the case is called Monday.
Garvey, Nolan and Lasher were convicted of first-degree murder with a recommendation for life imprisonment. The same jury also found them guilty of second-degree murder in connection with the attempted hold-up of Miles.

Revolution Sons Elect Officers
Dr. Edward Marshall Pallett was re-elected president of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of California at the thirty-fifth annual meeting and election of the society, held yesterday at its headquarters, 404 South Broadway.
Other officers named are Dr. Wesley W. Beckett, first vice-president; Judge Benjamin F. Blodgett, second vice-president; Guy B. Crump, third vice-president; Chas. M. Jay, secretary; Colin M. Gair, treasurer; Lewis A. Winston, registrar; Willis M. Dixon, librarian; Nathan W. Stowell, genealogist; H. E. Herr, William B. Stevens, chaplain; Col. Harcourt Harvey, marshal. Directors elected are Edward Boutwell, Dr. Gordon Crispin, John E. Marble, Orra E. Monnette, E. Palmer Tucker and Gen. Charles H. Whipple. Ralph E. Hardesty was re-elected on the board of trustees.
The new home of the society, Sons of the Revolution and Society of Colonial Wars, at 647 South Hope street, near the public library, is completed and will be open to the public about February 1.

American's Experiences Focus Attention on French Foreign Legion

The Most Picturesque and Romantic Military Organization in the world — the French Foreign Legion — has been given wide publicity throughout the world through the experiences of Bennett J. Doty, American soldier of fortune, whose story of legion life is now being printed in The Times. Above is a company of legionnaires. (P. & A. photo.)

To Display Jean Patou's Latest Designs—These four American girls—Margaret Shea, Dolores Toomey, Kathleen Crosby and Doris Comodore—have been engaged by the famous Paris style dictator to act as models in his exclusive establishment in French capital. (Herbert photo.)

Queen's Biographer, Miss Kathleen Woodward, rated among England's literary leaders, is a former factory girl who rose through sheer genius. (Herbert photo.)

Politics Had Nothing to Do With Love Affair of Prince Chichibu, 25-year-old brother of the Emperor of Japan, who has ventured beyond the bounds of royalty for his mate. He will wed Setau Matsudaira, daughter of Japanese Ambassador to United States, shown above with him. (P. & A. photo.)

When it Snows Up in the Great Northwest, It Snows, as this photo, taken on the highway in the Columbia Gorge, testifies. Snowplows, steam shovels and shovel gangs are working to clear the Columbia River Highway through the Cascade Mountains to permit resumption of travel on that important artery between coast and interior. (P. & A. photo.)

An Extended African Hunting Trip with weapons no more formidable than motion-picture cameras is planned by Maj.-Gen. Milton J. Foreman, retired commander of the Thirty-third Division. Here's Maj.-Gen. Foreman with his "weapon." (P. & A. photo.)

Crystal Beads of bronze outline the design in the smart frock of beige, displayed here by Bebe Daniels. Dyed lace contributes to beauty of frock.

World's Champion Three-Gaited Saddle Horse, Highland, one of the finest show horses in the world, is presented above with her mistress, Miss Fawn Banks of Covina. The mare is competing in the Los Angeles National Horse Show at Auditorium, February 4 to 11.

Real Winter Weather Hits Washington — Temperatures which prompted solons and officials at the nation's capital to bring out winter clothing prevailed for a number of days recently. Postmaster-General New and Mrs. New display their raccoon-skin coats above. (P. & A. photo.)

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

WHILE RENO WAS ADVANCING ON THE SIOUX VILLAGE AND CUSTER WAS SOMEWHERE OFF TO THE RIGHT, CAPT. BENTZEN HAD LED HIS COLUMN TO THE LEFT AND PENETRATED FOR SOME DISTANCE INTO A LABYRINTH OF DEEP RAVINES. ENCOUNTERING NO HOSTILES, HE TURNED TO THE RIGHT TO CROSS THE LITTLE BIG HORN.

BENTZEN HAD PAUSED TO WATER HIS MOUNTS. WHEN A BUGLER GALLOPED UP WITH A MESSAGE FROM CUSTER, IT READ, "BENTZEN, COME ON! BIG VILLAGE! BE QUICK! BRING PACKS!" AT THE SAME TIME THE SOUND OF HEAVY FIRING CAME OMINOUSLY FROM FAR DOWN THE VALLEY.

AS HE DASHED TOWARD THE DISTANT BATTLE, BENTZEN SUDDENLY OBSERVED A MASS OF BLUEGRASS MEN HOTLY ENGAGED WITH THE HOSTILES ON A BLUFF HIGH ABOVE THE RIVER. A FRIENDLY CROW SCOUT WHO HAD RIDDEN UP INFORMED BENTZEN THAT THE FIGHT ON THE BLUFF WAS THE CHIEF COMBAT, AND THE LATTER LED HIS MEN IN THAT DIRECTION.
